

Abstract

A method for moving a first epidermal area relative to a second epidermal area using a plurality of adhesive coated anchoring structures and an elastic material, the elastic material being coupled to the anchor structures.

5